Bethel Red Cross Elects

The annual Red Cross meeting was held May 24th at Kimball Ames' home. The secretary's report was read and accepted.

Projects of the year were reviewed; $591 of last year's collection was expended for the swimming program at Songo Pond. Under the supervision of Miss Marion Stallwood and Leland Kimball, 1,286 lessons were given and 63 awards made.

The home service expenditures of $126, were mainly for personal relief, burned out homes, transfusions, and the procurement of transfusers and emergency burials. Few people realize the Red Cross services performed for members of the Armed Forces and their families right in our own town through Mrs. Blaboe.

Our chapter maintains first aid kits and kits in the grade schools and the ski tow.

Many people responded to the first Mobile Blood Bank which was in operation in Norway on April 10. Eighteen pints of blood were given by Bethel people for the boys in Korea. The next blood mobile visit will be August 25 in Norway. Thanks to the many public spirited solicitors and the people's response, $1,005 of our 1952 Bethel quota of $1,155 was collected in March. This is the second highest percentage collected in any Branch in Southern Oxford County (Bethel 87%, Paris Hill 85%). The tornado disaster call for $100 was met with $95 in April.

The Treasurer's report was read and accepted.

The nominating committee chairman, Mrs. Clayton Fossell, nominated the current officers who were elected as follows: Chairman, Kimball Ames; Vice Chairman, Mrs. G. L. Thurston; Secretary, Mrs. John P. Howe; Treasurer, D. Grover Brooks; Directors Mrs. Olive Head, Mrs. Ruth Hastings, Mrs. Florence Holder.

Loeb Speaker at Gould Sport Banquet

The annual lettermen's banquet was held May 28, at the school dining hall with "Mike" Loeb, director of athletics, Colby College, as the speaker.

Each coach introduced his captain for 1951-1952 and announced the captains-elect for 1952-1953 (except in baseball and track—to be elected this week).

Ordel Anderson, basketball coach at Gould for 24 years, gave a very interesting review of Gould sports teams and their records for the past 20 years.

Headmaster E. F. Ireland reviewed the record of sweater awards since 1949: five awards in 1949, eight awards in 1950; three awards in 1951; three awards in 1952. These awards are made to boys winning six varsity letters in succession or seven letters over a longer period.

A sweater was presented to Peter Johnson who has made varsity letters in each of three sports the last two years.

The principal speaker, Mr. Loeb, talked on the history of sports, using the Olympic game as his major theme. A very distinct comparison between the time when the Olympic games were abandoned in Rome, an times because of professionalism, gambling, and over-emphasis on winning and our own times was well brought out.

School and college sports must watch just these same problems today or lose the interest and support of the public and fall in the main purposes of their presence in our school and college programs: namely a promoter of health, good fellowship, good sportsmanship and constructive character development.

The following boys and coaches were present:

Gilbert Loeb, Elmer Bennett, Alumni member of Athletic Council; Coach: E. Scott, football; M. Roderick, track; Mr. Kelley, winter sports; Mr. Anderson, basketball; Mr. Rosbury, baseball; Mr. Fossell, X-country; Mr. Miller, non-varsity sports; Mr. Myers, treasurer; Captain: 1951-1952, football Roger Adams; 1952-1953, basketball Henri Agence; Bar Harbor, Norm Ferguson; Hanover, X-country, Edward Hastings; Bethel, baseball, Peter Johnson; Portland, track, John Stevens; Gougeon, Captain-elect, 1952-1953, football Edwin Barron; Naples, X-country, Harvey Merrill; Bethel, baseball, LeRoy North; Watford, skiing, Tom Butler; Newport, El Hastings; Bethel.

Headmaster E. F. Ireland, D. Bennett, H. Haden, E. Haden, V. Gale, W. Gilman, W. Hastings, F. Linnell, C. McMillin, M. Olson, R. Patterson, P. Rose, F. Smith, D. Gregory, A. Taylor, K. Wilson, D. Emery, D. Eklund, D. Jordan, F. Fossell, A. Jordan, G. Fortin, G. Brown, F. Hussey, R. Cheyne, J. Willard, T. Smith, P. Lurvey, D. Easworth, H. Merrill, R. Nowlin, F. Fleet, F. Staples, H. Yates, H. National Holiday for Voter Registration

For the past 50 years our Federal government has been growing bigger and more powerful at just about the same rate that the citizens have been proving apathetic and lazy in carrying out the vitally important responsibility of voting. Something drastic should be done on a nationwide scale to get Americans to vote. I'm proposing to the National Association of Secretaries of State that a national "Registration Week" be sponsored by that organization and that state registration laws be made sufficiently uniform so the work can be observed at the same time in every town and city in the nation with all the fanfare of a great national event.

It would not be out of line to have "Registration Day" of this week designated as a legal public holiday for this day schools and businesses and industries would close. Registration booths would be set up in schools and drug stores as well as in city halls and other public buildings. Parades would be staged and the combined resources of the nation's press, radio, television, newspapers, the movies, etc., would be utilized to bring a general effort to get all of our 60,000,000 eligible citizens registered.

A Dramatic Event

What could be of more dramatic value in a world in which individual freedom and democracy are being up, than for America to go all out in a great national demonstration for citizenship? For 150 years we have been celebrating Independence Day each July 4th, and then on election days about 25 percent to 30 percent of us have been drifting on one of the greatest obligations of free men, the shopping of our local state and national governments with our votes and our votes.

Today only 25 percent of the eligible citizens vote in presidential elections and only 20 percent vote regularly in all elections. Just 20 years ago approximately 85 percent of the eligible citizens voted regularly in these 20 years during which our freedom to vote has been used less and less. Our government has been transformed from local self-government to national bureaucratic government and its cost has been multiplied 100 times and our total taxes now demand a sacrifice of the total national income. Federal and local government is demanding and the proportion of power is being gathered in to the hands of a faraway Federal bureaucracy. This is a fact no one can deny or ignore.

Registration to vote is only the beginning. Through it is an all important beginning. Through our National Education Program, Harding College is promoting "Tag Day" for all election days throughout the nation this year to stimulate the registered voters to action and to make them feel that they are part of the nation's life.

Today there are a lot of people involved in developing a national "Registration Week" and a legal holiday for "Registration Day" and there were far greater problems involved when our forefathers were voting our freedom to vote as free people to the first of us at Concord and Yorktown. We demand with C. C. Hall, Arkansas, veteran Secretary of State and now president of the National Association of Secretaries of State some of the problems to be solved in trying to establish uniform registration procedures and dates to the 48 states, and he does not think they are insurmountable. Mr. Hall is going to propose some action in the matter at the citizens' battle a great national meeting, on June 20 at Bethel.

The task of establishing nationwide uniformity on dates for voter registration is one for the 48 states. And the establishing of a legal holiday and a "Registration Week" would be a job for the officials of the 48 states working together. Therefore, the

DALE CARNEGIE

Defeating the Inferiority Complex

CALVIN OSBORN, San Diego, Calif., entered Washington Missionary college in Washington, D.C., one of the most backward, bashful students who ever crossed the campus. He had developed one of the worst cases of inferiority complex and self-consciousness anyone could possibly have.

It began when he was just a lad. He was next to the youngest in a family of six children. His mental attitude caused him to develop the habit of stuttering, and his older brothers mocked and made fun of him. Finally he got to the point where he refused to talk before a group.

All through high school he lived in that atmosphere of fear and worry. Why couldn't he be like other boys? Why couldn't he answer questions in classes without embarrassment? In his Spanish class he would be asked: "Senor Osborn, ¿que lección tenemos para hoy?" "Que pague?" (Mr. Osborn, what lesson do we have for today? What page?) To that question and all other questions, he would answer "No comprendo" (I don't comprehend). He was afraid of his own voice. Even in college he would hide behind the one in front for fear he would be asked a question.

And he wanted to enter the ministry! He knew what that meant! Public speaking and plenty of it. There was only one thing to do, so he made up his mind that every time he had an opportunity to speak in public he would. The director of the wood-working shop at Washington Missionary college encouraged him. One morning he said, "What one man has done another can do." Then Calvin Osborn said to himself, "Cal, if you have to let some of your studies go in order to give a talk, do it. Don't worry about mistakes—everyone makes them." Opportunities came and he accepted them. In the weeks, in his room, walking down the street he practiced talking, and he overcame his fear by doing what he feared most. Today as pastor of a large church he no longer stutters; his worries and fears are gone. It is as easy for him to talk as it is to eat.

WORTH REPEATING

"I am told that in New England there are 20,000 public school teachers as compared with 112,125 federal government employees. There is one school teacher for every 120 people while there is one federal employee for every 41 persons." Dr. Paul M. Lambert, President, Springfield College.

"Freedom as it has been conceived in the United States, has included the freedom to earn money and to spend it as one sees fit. It is not so simple as it seems. It is not so simple as it seems. It is not so simple as it seems."—Boston (Mass.) Herald.

"The federal government is too big. It is so big that it cannot be managed completely by any man or group of men. The burden of federal costs is now a greater load than the economy can carry and remain prosperous."—Dr. Harley L. Lutz, NAM Tax Expert.

"Because waste and inefficiency in government are so largely responsible for excessive taxation, it is imperative that they must be eliminated."—Newtown (Conn.) Bee.

THE WEEK IN Washington

DESPITE THE FACT that the American farmer is supposed to be represented in Washington by at least four powerful farm organizations which have some influence with the congress, the farmer appears to be the forgotten man. In fact, this congress is concerned with the American farmer as nearly as the American farmer is concerned with the American farmer.

The American farmer is near a financial crisis and needs strengthened farm price supports at the same time. Each farm organization on the American Farm Bureau Federation, and the National of Grange, to a lesser extent, no longer represent the individual farm membership so much as they represent the thinking of the big business groups which have to do with farm crops and purchases.

Despite the recent prediction by the department of agriculture of a bumper record crop for 1952, a report of the senate agriculture committee shows that farm debts have increased 100 per cent and farm net income will show a decrease under 1950. So far in 1952, farm prices have averaged three per cent lower than the average of all years, and all major purchased items are expected to add to a rise in production costs.

The bureau of agriculture economists' warning that real farm income will be three to five per cent lower than in 1951, actually lower than in any year during the past 20 years, is based on a presumption of record crops and a total cash yield which may be slightly above the 120 billion of last year. However, farm production expenses, which jumped 12 per cent last year, is still climbing, and price increases for feed and fertilizer, hired labor, taxes, interest, rent, and most other expenses will add to the total production cost. This reduction in farm net income in a period of predicted record crop production is made in the face of an expected rise of at least three per cent in the total national income.

Some recognition must be given to the national farmers' union and the less than it made against congressional attacks in the agricultural appropriation bill, and particularly against disastrous cuts in the agricultural conservation payments. The Farm Bureau held out for a cut from $200 million, and the National Association of Secretaries of State in a budgetary commission is spreading the effort.

The Registration laws today are a hodgepodge of states and confusions. The general registration deadline of October 1, but their primary registration deadline is different in each instance. In other states 25 different dates are designated, ranging from July 3 in Mississippi to November 1 in Vermont. In most states the registration deadlines are not adequately published and millions of potential voters carelessly slip by without registering. If you think "Registration Week" as a national event has merit, you can help as a citizen. Write your Secretary of State urging his support. Read him this column.

At the start of this congress it appeared there was no hope at all for any improvement in price support laws. As a result of the operation of the Caphart amendment which has made application of controls impossible, there may be a stronger price control act. Consumer credit organizations, while admitting there are some 3,500,000 refrigerators and other millions of household appliances in inventories, are NOT content with the federal reserve board rulings limiting applications of regulations governing consumer credits, but favor holding on to the controls as a stand by, if necessary, to clamp down again. These manufacturers and consumer credit organizations want all controls repealed. They are not satisfied with suspension, despite the fact they can't sell refrigerators in inventory at present prices.

The question of why President Truman did not invoke or act under the Taft-Hartley act has been highlighted in the steel arguments. In the first place, the President sought to prevent a shut down of the steel mills. There is nothing in the Taft-Hartley act which would have prevented a shut down, and, as a matter of fact, invocation of this act would have of a certainty shut down the mills for at least two to three weeks.

SHRINE OF PERPETUAL GRIEF

"I REMEMBER"

BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Miss Ruth Sweet, Waterville, N.Y.: I like to think of the days of the nickel sodas when a young man was able to take six girls to an ice cream parlor and buy seven sodas for 35 cents.

From Mrs. Ada Short, Center, Texas: When my grandmother wanted us children to be quiet, she would tell us honest-to-goodness Indian stories—the trials and tribulations she encountered in a caravan from Alabama to Texas.

From Mrs. C. D. Hale, Mari, Texas: Do you remember when the daughter of the family would say, "Mother, do you think three petticoats will be enough?"

From Mary Karch, Lakewood, Ohio: I remember the peddling wagon where mother used to take her butter and eggs to the main highway to trade. The peddler used to blow a conch shell that sounded over the hills to let us know he was coming.

From Curtis W. Robertson, Kansas City, Mo.: I remember when I was a very young man living in Lakewood, Mo., I sold stereoscopes. I remember going as a boy to my great grandpa's to roll papers to light his pipe and the oil lamps.

From John H. Simpson, Cincinnati: I can remember when we had to wear one pair of leather boots all winter. We would have to go barefooted until well into the winter, and then my father would get a pair of horse and go get us a pair of red top and brass-toed boots, and come riding home with them slung across the saddle.

From Mrs. Kathryn Bennett, Mid-Melrose, Pa.: I remember the Hickey Pokey Man who came around every evening during the summer. For a penny we could get a big, cooling and refreshing Hickey Pokey, with bright colored cherry flavoring poured over it. I always got cherry, although it smelled and tasted like hair tonic.

From Frank Cochran, Webb City, Mo.: I remember the first schools that I attended were in a log house, about 20 feet square, with large fireplaces that burned wood about six feet long. There was no floor. The benches were made from logs split through the center and hewed smooth. There were four holes bored on the round side and wooden pins used for legs in the holes. There was a huge punched door. The house had no rafters.

From Mrs. C. B. Scott, Meadows of Oak, Va.: I remember when I was a little girl, mother and we girls would card and spin yarn and knit our winter stockings and gloves. Women were dressers to the ground. Most everybody walked; sometimes a young man would ride horseback and take his best girl on behind him to church and back.

From George A. Muenchenberger, Douglas, Ill.: I can remember when there was a death in the family, all the pictures were turned with their faces to the wall, the clock was stopped, and no one spoke above a whisper while the body was in the house.

From William Shamer, Lakewood, Ohio: I remember when daddy bent pins, fastened them to a piece of string, tied on a nail for a shiner, and sent us to the creek fishing. Oh yes, we had a can of worms.

ideas from other editors

AT SOME TIME or other, every weekly newspaper editor has found himself in hot water because of some "story" he published or did not publish. E. W. Lauck, editor of the Page News and Courier, Lynchburg, Virginia, recently had such difficulties. This is his editorial reply to his critics, entitled "Publishing the News".

"If a newspaper could be run by publishing only the news meeting the approval of those concerned it would be wonderful. But unfortunately a newspaper like that can't be run—except into the ground. Its no-wonder, therefore, that we find ourselves in somewhat of a predicament once in a while when we are requested not to publish a story which manifestly is already public property.

"We are an accommodating lot but not to the extent that we are going to set fire to the business structure in which we live. We know that there are many who don't care. But there is an obligation we have and this is to print the news wherever we find it and in the best way we know. That is what we are paid for and this is what we endeavor to do.

"There are extenuating circumstances, of course. There are times when a sensational story is not worthy of publication—and there are times when a seemingly innocent story deserves big headlines. Much is determined by the underlying implications and the story's relation to the general welfare. But in all cases where a business transaction is in process of completion and where its revelation can do no harm, it appears ridiculous to leave the true facts to public gossip rather than to an authenticated statement. "Therefore we hope we do not make too many people mad as we publish the news as we see it. It is just that this is what we are paid for."

I Haven't Got Time

From the Herington Advertiser-Times, Herington, Kansas: "How often do you hear the statement today that 'I haven't got time'? It is offered as an explanation for failure to vote, for failure to attend meetings on government issues, for failure to write to legislators about important bills.

"This is a new excuse in our country, a development of a new excuse, in fact, if it weren't a new excuse, we wouldn't have a country. There wouldn't be a United States of America—for the United States of America is a country of Americans somehow found time to form our nation and fight a war for independence. They found time even though they were all busy men.

"Benjamin Franklin was a philosopher and scientist; Paul Revere a silversmith; John Hancock, a merchant; Patrick Henry, a lawyer; George Washington, a soldier and planter; Thomas Paine a writer. There are just a few examples. Most of the founders of our country were farmers, businessmen or professional men. All of them could have said they were 'too busy' and proved that statement—if they had wanted to use such an excuse to avoid taking part in the American Revolution.

"If they could find time to do freedom for us, we can surely find time to preserve this inheritance."

Follow me and let the dead bury their dead. (Matthew 23:29)
Read Matthew 23:18-29.

NEWSPAPERS a few years ago printed stories of two wealthy brothers in New York City who filled a great home with piles of junk. Both of them died, trapped by the accumulation of what had become trash. In another city, a woman was found dead in a home filled to capacity with bolts of the finest silk. Accumulated in a miserly fashion and never put to use, these had become useless.

Every person has now and then to pause and clear away the junk of life if proper living is to be maintained. Paul understood this fact and interpreted Jesus in such a way that He became a world-wide, not a localized figure. "Jesus Christ the same yesterday, and to day, and for ever" is the world's hope of redemption.

We must not let the "junk" of our tradition bar the way to the triumph of Jesus. We must interpret Him in the light of our day and generation if we are truly to portray Him to those about us. He commands respect and affection.

Prayer
Our Father, we thank Thee for the life of Jesus. Above all else help us to accept Him that we may understand His will and purpose for our lives. Help us so to understand and interpret Him that others may see His spirit in us and glorify Thee. In the Master's name. Amen.

Thought For The Day
Christ commands that the spiritual riches found in His life and teachings be shared with all mankind.—C. A. Jones, Publisher (Ohio)

First: "When the enemy shall come in like a flood, the Spirit of the Lord shall lift up a standard against him." (Isaiah 59:19)

IT IS AXIOMATIC that a man will serve a kind and generous master more readily and faithfully than one who is hard and stingy. Since God is infinitely good and loving, why, then, do so many men flout His will and turn their faces from Him?

One reason is that many individuals have little understanding of God's great love for them. It may be that some would continue to offend God even though convinced of His claim to affection and loyalty. But most men tend to find in the reality of God's love a challenge to what is highest and noblest in their nature.

Meditation on His marvelous works and manifest interest in the welfare of humankind is one way to evoke an inspiring love of God. Another is to study the Bible which chronicles the manner and ways in which God has encompassed mankind with His mercy and compassion. Yet another is to study the lives of other beings whose love for God inspired them to scale the heights of spiritual perfection.

A St. Paul or a St. Augustine can teach more perhaps about God than any formal theological treatise. Other great and holy men have lived lives which demonstrated how wonderfully God can exult and exult even the humblest of His servants. The history of Christianity is replete with the names of men and women whose lives were devoted to the service of God. Reading of such things, one must pause to reflect: A God who is so mighty and powerful and yet so loving and compassionate merits indeed to be served in all reverence.

of Sherman Mills, who captured first place in the six states in 1948.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

This most informal picture of three young men in a tub would be a good shot to include in a special album for grandmother.

It Pays to Plan Christmas Gifts Early

I KNOW there're many, many shopping days left before Christmas, but some of the most appreciated gifts are the kind you make yourself, especially suited for a special person.

One of the best of these is a small snapshot album, made up of pictures of mutual interest to the giver and recipient. Just the other day I saw an especially nice one that was made up as a gift for the grandparents this last year. As you might easily guess, the small fry of the family were the featured subjects. The young couple plan to make such an album a traditional gift, to prepare one covering the high points of every year.

The book I saw began with the previous Christmas. The holiday snapshots showed the children playing with the gifts the grandparents had provided. The next page featured Classy's Valentine party. Easter outfits were carefully recorded as were a May birthday cake. In summertime the family camera found the children at play in the backyard and it followed them through the night points of a vacation trip. This jaunt included a visit to the grandparents and pictures taken there were a part of the gift album.

This album was especially good because it represented year-long planning. If they had waited until November and searched through their snapshots for appropriate gift book pictures, they undoubtedly would have found something. But by planning it throughout the year and making pictures with it in mind, they were able to compile a highly satisfactory record that is the grandparents' pride and joy.

This is but one type of Christmas gift album. You know better than anyone else who you'd like to give a picture book for Christmas and what pictures it should include. I don't think you could plan a nicer gift—or one of greater satisfaction to the recipient—than a set of snapshots of special interest to both of you.

The LOW DOWN FROM HICKORY GROVE

Today I take a peep into the political arena, and you know, she looks like the paint and gilt on the old bandwagon and callings have worn thin—the wheels creak—the tinsel is tarnished—the clowns' jokes and antics don't seem to have the old punch. After 20 years, folks are beginning to catch on that what the barker said out in front didn't happen once you put down your 4 bits at the ticket wagon and passed inside to the big performance.

For years we been told everything would be sweet and grand in no time at all. But today, ringmaster Harry Says, and I quote, "this country is in the midst of the greatest emergency it has ever had."

So we see a new show—new faces—this summer is going to be interesting. Mr. Kefauver riding by on his bicycle in his coon-skin skimmer—Mr. Stassen splitting his votes with others—Mr. Warren sprinting along trying to keep up with the procession—and Uncle Harry there on the sidelines, but with his hat hidden under his vest, but ready to haul it out and shy it into the fray if it looks like he has a ghost of a chance. Then in the heavyweight class we see Mr. Taft and Mr. Russell and Mr. Eisenhower—I would not choose to tangle with any of these three sober gentls. We are not sunk yet—anyway not completely.

Yours with the low down, JO SERRA

No Inferiority in Spirit

A POPULAR excuse for apparent failure often finds expression in the remark, "I suffer from an inferiority complex." Moral mind, self-deceived by the morbid conception of personal inadequacy, may flounder in a morass of mediocrity, frustration, and hopelessness until the truth of man's infinite selfhood and unity with his Maker is learned.

"And God saw every thing that he had made, and behold, it was very good," we read in the Bible (Genesis 1:31). The perfect, spiritual creation, which is eternally changeless, obviously includes nothing inferior.

In "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, writes (p. 477): "Soul can never reflect anything inferior to Spirit. Man is the expression of Soul. The supremacy of Soul, God, enables man, His idea, to reflect and express dominion. Equipped with the understanding of our spiritual birthright, we can successfully root the carnal foe called inferiority complex."

A typical expression of this material complex—or "inferiority complex"—with regard to some subject or situation (which one dictionary gives as a loose definition of the word)—is extreme shyness or fear of meeting people both individually and collectively. Such fear erroneously imputes an overwhelming inability to say the right thing. Such corporeal suggestion was strongly rebuked by God's direction to Moses (Exodus 4:12): "Now therefore go, and I will be with thy mouth, and teach thee what thou shalt say"; and Moses was no longer inarticulate or afraid to lead the children of Israel out of bondage.

Meeting new people is not an ordeal if we first turn our thoughts toward God, and humbly heed His instruction, as Moses did. We can never be at a loss for words when there is a sincere desire to voice truth. Thus, whether one is seeking suitable employment, new business accounts, recognition in the arts, professional progress, or leadership in civic or national spheres, the understanding that God is "with thy mouth" causes so-called nervousness to yield to poise, eloquence to fluency, and timidity to resoluteness. Further, this understanding banishes any disturbing doubts concerning the effect of impression we produce upon others. The mortal senses may tempt one to speak falsely, deprecatingly, egotistically, or hypocritically, according to what seems the expediency of the moment, or may seem to render one speechless and uneasy, but these illusory extremes are meager and without influence, and they can never withstand the challenge of Truth which proclaims man's ability to speak freely, sincerely, and with integrity. The utterances of Christ Jesus are authoritative, triumphant, and eternal because they are based on divine Principle.

Belief in an inferiority complex may also propound the falsehood that one's appearance is unattractive, hence one is doomed to a friendless existence. The popular conception of beauty often emphasizes its merely physical embodiment and minimizes the indwelling loveliness of compassion, grace, kindness, humility—all qualities of Love, God. To identify oneself with physical ugliness, deformity, or disfigurement is to believe the temporal testimony of the corporeal senses that God could, or would, create His spiritual ideas unlike Himself. "God created man in His own image, in the image of God created he him," declares the Scriptures (Genesis 1:27), and this spiritual record establishes the true identity of man.

The real man can never be duped into believing himself the prey of any of the modes of a so-called inferiority complex or imperfection, for he is the perfect expression of God.—The Christian Science Monitor.

Scattered Troops Although there theoretically were no infantry divisions in the Army two years prior to Pearl Harbor, personnel was scattered about in small units and provided the equivalent of only three and one-half divisions operating at half strength. In addition, two divisions were in Hawaii and the Philippines, according to the newest addition to the Army's official history of World War II, "Washington Command Post: The Operations Division."

OPS WEEKLY LETTER

OPS now requires retail meat markets to show the name of each cut of beef and the selling price per pound when placed on display.

Julius W. Davis, Maine District OPS Meat Control Officer, said this amendment to the retail beef ceiling price regulation is effective May 28.

The action was taken to prevent evasion and to give the consumer increased protection.

A slight increase in markups for food wholesalers on sales of certain canned fruits and vegetables has been announced.

The higher markups apply to canned fruit cocktails, pineapples, peaches and pears, and to corn, green beans, tomatoes and tomatoes to juice.

The increases were permitted because the wholesalers had been showing markedly lower earnings.

More than 50 potato dealers throughout the country have been cited in injunctive actions for alleged over-ceiling sales.

The cases have been filed in U. S. District Courts by the Department of Justice on behalf of OPS.

Alleged violators are located in 11 states with six of the last nine filed being entered in the Cleveland District Court.

OPS has announced a rollback of two to 11 cents a pound in the retail ceiling prices of whole sirloin beef purchased for freezer units.

The new ceilings range from 31 to 36 cents a pound.

The price reduction reflects lower wholesale ceilings.

ATTEND FARMERS HOME ADMINISTRATION STATE CONFERENCE

Benjamin A. Curtis, Jr., County FFA supervisor for Oxford and Androscoggin Counties, and Eva C. Holkinnen, County Office Clerk, returned Wednesday from the annual state-wide Farmers Home Administration planning and policy conference at Rockland. About 40 FFA supervisors and clerks representing all sixteen counties of Maine attended. The FFA State Staff at Bangor, headed by Homer F. Worcester, State Director, was in charge. Darius F. Joy, Supervisor at Rockland, was local host to the group.

The group was especially fortunate in having Mrs. Frances Clingerman of Information Staff at Washington, D. C., present at the meeting. Mrs. Clingerman spoke to the group on both days and presented valuable information on ways in which the public could learn about the Farmers Home Administration.

The purpose of the two-day meeting was to outline loan policies and making plans for the coming year. The group will start July 1. Major stress this year, it was agreed at the conference, will be placed on improving farm housing and developing and unproductive land.

Improved credit facilities in this area and other localities will be expanded to permit additional qualified families to construct, remodel, or repair their dwelling or other farm buildings; and to clear, level, drain, or otherwise develop land now producing below capacity.

State Director Worcester pointed out that this emphasis fits in with the agency's aim this year to help cooperating farm families more effectively and to do their part in the National Food Goal Program.

Approximately sixteen hundred Maine families are now using Farmers Home Administration supervised credit to own or operate farms or to improve inadequate housing. The Farmers Home Administration makes supervised loans to qualified families to buy, enlarge, or develop farms, to improve inadequate housing, and to purchase seed, feed, fertilizer, livestock, equipment, and supplies for operating farms. Inquiries about the program or about eligibility for loan services are always welcome and information may be had at

IN MEMORIAM

Again the Divine Master has removed from our Grange circle our beloved Sister, Viola Kimball. She served faithfully as long as health permitted. Her memory will be cherished by all who knew her.

Be It Resolved That our character be draped for three weeks, and Be It Further Resolved That a copy of these Resolutions be spread upon our records, a copy sent to the bereaved family, and a copy sent to the Oxford County Citizen.

A sister from us has gone. A voice well-loved is stilled. A place is vacant in our Grange. That never can be filled.

She has crossed the shining river. Joined the happy Angel band. Where flowers are brighter far, Than on our earthly strand.

WORTH THINKING ABOUT

May 19 was 1952 National Tax Freedom Day—the first day this year that a man could call a dollar his own.

Every cent the average American earned up to that date he must pay out in taxes—local, state and federal.

This is another way of saying that the overall tax load has now reached the point where it takes 38 cents out of every dollar earned. Out of each hour work, the pay for 23 minutes is taken by the government in direct and hidden taxes.

Economists and historians compare this condition to the freedom granted Prussian serfs centuries ago when their masters allowed them to work for themselves two days out of each week.

Never before have Americans had to work for four and a half months to pay their taxes. In 1920 they began working for themselves on February 26. By 1940 the date had advanced to March 27. In 1951 National Tax Freedom Day was observed on April 28, with formal recognition by Congress.

Citizens of the United States now pay more for taxes than they do for all the food they eat. All of the income of all the people in all states west of the Mississippi River will not be enough to pay the bills of the federal government as budgeted for the year ahead.

Do We Remember?

God and a soldier all people adore
In time of war and all things are righted,
And when war is over and all things are righted,
God is forgotten and an old soldier plighted.

—Anonymous—

The other day I received a letter from a friend in Pusan, Korea, that has been causing me to lose a lot of sleep ever since. He had just returned to his quarters after watching a group of wounded and disabled American veterans being sent back to hospitals in Japan and to the United States. "I wonder if you people back home really appreciate what these boys have sacrificed in order that you can live a normal, peaceful life," he wrote. "All of these casualties are young men—some merely teen-age kids. They came from a comfortable home, just like yours. They were born with the expectation of living out a natural life in good surroundings. They didn't hesitate to go half way around the world to fight for decency and democratic ideals in a stinking hell-hole. And now they are coming back to you—but not as they left!"

"Some are blind. Others have an arm or a leg gone. Still others have injuries less serious but nevertheless a permanent nature. Every last of them are in the state of a life mother's son of them staked his life on the freedom of the world. They are going to let them come home to the forgotten men, shunted to the side of the highway of life, to rot away in oblivion?"

Perhaps the reason I haven't been able to answer too well since receiving that letter, is because I have a heart that is in my heart that you and I take these disabled American veterans too much for granted. Of course we know a war is going on. Aren't taxes sky high? Naturally we keep up with the Korean conflict in a busy sort of way. Let's see now. How many casualties have we suffered so far? A quick check of the record reveals that in the last 100 days more than 100,000 American soldiers have been killed or wounded in Korea!

A HUNDRED THOUSAND! You know what that means? It means that if every American soldier that received a battle wound in the Korean conflict was suddenly dropped into the United States, there wouldn't be room left in our towns for a single, solitary disabled veteran. The number of disabled American veterans would outnumber us by several thousand! Add to this staggering number the men who were disabled in the World Wars and you would have a city, entirely populated by veterans receiving combat disabilities, larger than Atlanta.

Many thousands of these men are members of an organization very aptly called Disabled American Veterans. I still contend that DAV more properly means "Distinguished and Valiant" and heartily concur with General Douglas MacArthur's words "Membership in no group in the world carries greater honor than in the Disabled American Veterans."

The disabled veteran today faces many problems. Living costs have risen 17 percent since the outbreak of the Korean war, yet disabled veterans are receiving less compensation than they did 50 years ago! The 1950 they did 50 years ago! The 1950 average monthly payments per veteran was $34.00 as compared with $95.00 in 1950.

The DAV advocates the freeing of medical personnel within the Veterans Administration as well as legislation providing for a five-year federal aid program in medical education to increase the number of doctors, dentists and nurses for VA hospitals. They also would like to see the 1,000 hospital beds appropriated last year returned in order to adequately take care of the Korean wounded now streaming back to the states.

A recent DAV survey revealed that at least 500 million work hours annually can be made available to ease the current shortage of labor by utilizing an estimated 250,000 disabled veterans, now unemployed. And today a disabled veteran receives no consideration for compensation if he is married and has a family.

The DAV believes that since many of these men and their dependents are suffering financial hardships and that they should be granted compensation allowances based on the number of dependents involved.

All of these projects are worthy of vigorous support by you and me. This business of sending billions of dollars to the far ends of the earth to help suffering humanity is a noble and Christian gesture but I'll sleep a lot better when I know that our government has adequately and properly taken care of the fellows who got their bodies mutilated and torn to keep me and mine free and safe, FIRST!

VETERANS' NEWS LETTER

Maine veterans who do not request cash payment of their 1952 GI Insurance dividend will be notified of the amount credited to them and conditions under which it will accrue interest, according to the Veterans Administration. Notices will be mailed to such veterans after the 1952 anniversary dates of their policies—the dates when their 1952 dividend is payable.

Policy holders will be advised that if the dividend credit is not applied to pay premiums falling due, or not otherwise disposed of in full at the insured's request within three months from the anniversary date, it will earn interest.

VA already has begun mailing 1952 dividend checks to policy holders who made requests in writing for cash payments.

Questions and Answers—
Q: How can I determine the anniversary date of my GI Insurance policy?
A: The anniversary date of any policy is the specific day in the month during which you took out the policy originally.

Q: How many New England veterans presently carry GI insurance?
A: There are presently in force 215,444 GI policies.
